AND BACK WITH ATOMIC MOUSE...

ATOMIC MOUSE

ACCORDING TO MY SPACE WATCH, THAT RADIO CALL WOULD HAVE COME ON A MARS NIGHT, AND THAT'S IMPOSSIBLE! AT NIGHT EVERYTHING FREEZES OVER ON MARS, EVEN THE PEOPLE!

THIS MUST BE A TRICK OF COUNT GATTO'S — I'LL GET BACK TO MOUSEVILLE RIGHT AWAY!

NO TIME TO WASTE -- I'LL HAVE TO TAKE SHORT CUTS THROUGH THE STARS AND THE MOON IN ORDER TO GET BACK!

WAS THAT A METEOR?

NO, THAT WAS ATOMIC MOUSE — MUST BE TROUBLE IN MOUSEVILLE!

I HOPE I REMEMBER RIGHT, WHICH CRATER HAS AN OPENING ON BOTH ENDS — I'D HATE TO DESTROY THE MOON JUST TO CATCH COUNT GATTO!

I MADE IT!

ATOMIC MOUSE

IT SHOULDN'T TAKE ME MORE THAN TEN MINUTES TO GET BACK TO MOUSEVILLE FROM HERE! PERHAPS MY ATOMIC SIGHT CAN PINPOINT COUNT GATTO!

USING MY ATOMIC SIGHT TAKES A LOT OF ENERGY — PERHAPS I'D BETTER TAKE ANOTHER U-235 PILL FOR EXTRA STRENGTH!

AH HA! JUST AS I THOUGHT! COUNT GATTO AND SHADOW ARE AT THE BANK, AND THEY'RE ABOUT TO BLOW THE VAULT!

I HOPE I CAN MAKE IT BEFORE THAT ELECTRIC CHARGE HITS THE EXPLOSIVE!

WHILE BELOW...

WITH ATOMIC MOUSE ON MARS, I'LL TAKE EVERY DOLLAR IN THE BANK! HERE GOES!

I'M GETTING A BANG OUT OF THIS!

NOW LET'S GET THOSE INNER DOORS OPEN AND IT'LL ALL BE OURS!

WITH YA, BOSS!

ATOMIC MOUSE

ATOMIC MOUSE

IF I PUT ON SOME STEAM, I'LL HAVE THIS BUILDING PATCHED UP IN NO TIME! LUCKY IT'S ALL STEEL--I CAN FUSE IT WITH MY HANDS!

BY RAPIDLY BENDING THE METAL EDGES BACK AND FORTH IN MY HANDS, THEY'LL SOON REACH A WHITE-HEAT!

NOW I CAN SHAPE IT BY HAND AND WELD THAT HOLE BY DRAWING THE METAL TOGETHER!

THERE! THAT'S GOOD AS NEW NOW-- AND HANDLING THAT WHITE-HOT METAL IS MUCH COOLER WORK THAN DIVING THROUGH A STAR!

NOW I'LL GET BACK TO MY CHESS GAME WITH PROFESSOR INVENTO!

HELLO, PROFESSOR! IS IT MY MOVE YET?

DON'T RUSH ME, ATOMIC MOUSE, DON'T RUSH ME!

NOW IF YOU DON'T SPILL THE BEANS, WE'LL GET OUT OF HERE!

I HATE BEANS, ANYHOW, BOSS! LET'S GO SEE THAT WARDEN!

WHEN GATTO HEARS I'VE BEEN PUT IN JAIL, HE'LL BE UP TO HIS OLD TRICKS AGAIN—AND THIS TIME I'VE GOT A TRICK OR TWO MYSELF THAT WILL TUCK HIM SAFELY IN JAIL!

AND AT COUNT GATTO'S HIDEOUT...

THIS IS IT, SHADOW! WITH ATOMIC MOUSE KEPT IN JAIL, WE CAN BE RIGHT NEXT DOOR TO HIM TONIGHT—ROBBING THE BANK!

SURE, STUPID! I GOT THE MONEY FROM THE FRONT—BUT NOT FROM THE VAULT!

OK, BOSS!

THAT NIGHT...

HEY! WE ALMOST STARTED BREAKING INTO THE CITY JAIL!

HOLY COW! LET'S GO NEXT DOOR TO THE BANK!

HELP ME DIG THIS TUNNEL! THIS TIME WE'LL COME UP UNDER THE VAULT!

OK, BOSS!

WOW, BUT THAT WAS HARD WORK—BUT WE'RE HERE!

YEAH—WE'LL BE RICH!

AND YOU'LL BE IN JAIL FOR QUITE AWHILE AFTER I PATCH UP THAT TUNNEL YOU JUST DUG INTO HERE!

OWAH! HOW'D WE GET IN HERE! THIS WAS SUPPOSED TO BE THE BANK!

I FIGURED YOU'D BE TOO GREEDY TO PASS UP THE MONEY IN THE VAULT WHEN YOU HEARD I WAS IN JAIL, SO I SWITCHED SIGNS ON THE FRONTS OF THE BANK AND THE JAIL! NOW I'LL GO PICK UP THAT LOOT YOU STOLE!

CURSES—FOILED AGAIN!

The End

Rodney's Road Race

The full-throated roar pervaded over Happy Forest. It wasn't the noise of an animal like a lion or a tiger or a leopard, but the noise sounded like forty lions and tigers and leopards all gathered together and roaring at once. The full-throated roaring came from the Happy Forest Road Race Course, and it was made by a number of the hottest hot rods that could be built. It was the day of the Big Race!

Rodney Rabbit, a well-liked rabbit, better known among the grease-monkeys of Happy Forest as Hot Rodney or Hot Rod Rabbit, was one of the heavy favorites to win the race. He was seated in his streamlined, channelled and chopped dragster (this means it was a very fast car in hot-rod talk) and raced the motor as he waited at the starting line for the go-gun. Hot Rod moved his racing glasses down over his eyes and adjusted his leather driving gloves and his flowing white scarf. He always made a real picture as he raced along at 90 miles an hour in his hot rod, his scarf flowing behind him and his glasses glued to his head, just like old time flying pilots.

To the left of Rodney's car was another fast-sounding hot rod — the one owned by Grampa Fox. It was old-looking, and in truth it was an old car, but Rodney didn't let that fool him. He knew that Gramp Fox was one of the best race drivers in the Forest, and that the car he'd been racing for over 35 years was still one of the fastest around. Rodney looked over the set-up, Grampa at ease in his old-fashioned but fast-looking car, and figured that he would be the man to beat.

Then Rodney glanced to his right, but before he could say hello to Will Raccoon, who had built-in driving glasses, "BANG" went the starter's gun, and they were off and streaking down the winding road.

It was an hour-long race, and it covered 90 miles, so you can see that the hot-rodders really traveled in this race. Rodney lost the lead, but decided to make up for lost time at the first big turn. He stepped on the gas and headed into the winding turn at full throttle — this was a stunt few other drivers would try for fear of turning their cars over or for fear of spinning out of the race as they missed the turn. But a really good driver in a race could make the turns faster than other drivers and he could make up a good deal of time lost by doing so.

Into the turn at full throttle went Rodney, and a dusty turn it was. Rodney stared through the grime settling on his windshield as he whipped the steering wheel to the right — the turn must be right here! He couldn't see! Dust from the other cars hadn't settled, and it was like driving in the worst sort of fog as Rodney flew into the turn at 75 miles per hour. Having been over the course many times before, Rodney counted to three as his car spun in the dust, and then he quickly straightened out the wheel and tromped the gas pedal to the floor. In another four seconds he emerged from the blanket of dust and found himself still on the road and going strong! Rodney had been timing himself in these turns and knew just when the wheel should be turned to get him out of the corner before he crashed. "I could darn near run this course blindfolded", Rod thought, as he gunned along the road, gaining on the nearest car to him.

Rod had just approached the red car in front of him as they came to another hairpin turn. It was clear at the turn — the dust had settled enough for Rodney to jam through it — or so he thought. The red car was being driven by Sharpie Skunk, a very tricky driver. Just as Sharpie headed into the turn, he dumped some kerosene into his fuel line and caused a big white smoke screen to emerge from behind his car.

This would have been the end for any driver except Rodney Rabbit. With his skill and knowledge of the road, he hit the turn at even greater speed than the previous turn and began counting. "One-two-three", Rodney counted, and just at that instant he felt his left front wheel drop down! Was he going off the road? Rodney held on to the wheel and prepared to jump if he felt the car lurch any further! But the left front wheel came up, and he shot through the turn like a bolt of lightning, passing Sharpie Skunk on the way. As he checked his rear-view mirror, Rodney saw immediately behind him a short dip in the road at the turn. If he had been able to see it more clearly through the white fog still left at the turn, he would have noticed that it was a dip made by a skidding car. Rodney hadn't misfigured at all, but had been on the right track all the time. He really knew this road!

Rodney had passed a good dozen of the cars by the time another ten minutes had passed. His car was really in tune, he thought. It hummed a song of speed as he pushed down the gas pedal and flew along the dirt road race course. He was in complete command of his car and was feeling like the winner of the race already, when ahead he saw — two cars! "How could they have gotten up there?" Rodney wondered as he lowered his head and gunned down the course, intent on outracing them in this last few minutes of the race. He hadn't even realized there were more cars ahead of him! With the winding course, it was hard to tell who lay beyond the next turn, or if you were in the lead, he thought. But the last part of the race was a straightaway road, which led three miles to the finish line!

As Rodney came out of the last turn on the course and headed into the straightaway to the finish line, he peered down the road. Still only two cars there! That meant if he could beat these two, he would WIN THE RACE! Putting every ounce of speed into the car he could muster, Rod began pulling up on the rear car. It was Windy Weasel, a good driver in a good car, but a tricky type who would bear watching. He'd been known to cheat before, Rodney thought, as his front wheels approached the rear wheels of Windy's roaring car.

Just as Rodney felt he was about to pass Windy, he noticed Windy reaching for a box—they were tacks! Rodney was passing on the left side of Windy's car as Windy dumped the box of tacks on the road—they would shatter the tires on Rodney's car and make him lose the race! But Rodney knew a few tricks himself! He slammed on the brakes as he twisted the steering wheel to the left—this made his car skid to the right of Windy's car—and as he reached the right side of Windy's car, where there weren't any tacks, he gunned the engine and took his foot off the brakes, speeding ahead!

But the braking action had been too much—it held him back for an instant, and Grampa Fox swept into the finish line—the winner as usual. But Rodney made a good second—and lost gracefully. After the race Rodney approached Grampa Fox.

"Grampa," he said, "I have what I figure to be the best darned hot rod in Happy Forest! I entered this race, thinking I could win it, even against you! Now I don't know about my car anymore—I'd like to have a bang-up job like you have! I want an out-of-this-world dragster!"

"What you mean to say, Rodney," said Grampa, holding his big silver winner's cup, "is that you'd like to know my secret, eh?"

"Uh—I'd guess you'd say that, Grampa! How come you ALWAYS have the winning car in the race—it's not as new or modern as mine, and it shouldn't be as fast, according to any book I ever read on the subject!" remarked Rodney.

Grampa grew thoughtful and scratched his chin with the big silver loving cup. He appeared to be making a decision. He made it.

"Okay, youngster, I'll tell you what it is. It's the FUEL I use!" he said.

"Fuel! But don't you use gasoline, same as the rest of us?"

"Now, I never have used that new-fangled stuff! When I was a kid and racing, I never was able to afford that—so I'd take a little corn mix'n's, some nitro-glycerine, empty out the barn-lamp leftovers and finish it up with a chew of tobacco. Then I'd let this stuff sit for a couple of days, and before it blew up of its own accord, I'd dump it into my car tank and take a fast ride. Works like a charm!" said Grampa, seemingly amazed at his invention.

"I got some now settin' in the barn that should be ripe by now! I'm retiring this year, so YOU can have the mixture if you want it—but it's mighty powerful stuff!" Grampa warned.

"Boy, that would be keen!" shouted Rodney, ready for the offer.

The two men then went to Grandpa's barn. There seething in a vat, was the "chuggin' water", as Grampa called it. Grampa helped Rodney pour in a tankful, and then stood back.

"There you are, son," he said, "but be careful with it—it's really ripe!"

"I will, Grampa!" yelled Rodney, gunning the engine and throwing the car into gear. He spun out of the driveway and roared onto the road at a full 60 miles per hour. At the first bend in the road, Rodney noticed a slight bump in the road—he decided to go over it instead of around it. He did neither. He went BOOM!, as the tank full of "hot go-juice" rattled at the bump.

When the dust cleared, not a thing was left—except Rodney, who had been blown back into the garage of Grampa, who stood watching him, leaning against a door as he watched.

"I reckon' that last bunch WAS a little pow'-full!" Grampa ventured.

"A LITTLE powerful—why, it destroyed the whole car—it knocked my car clear out of this world!" Rodney said.

"Well, isn't that what you wanted—a car that's out of this world?" Grampa asked with a twinkling eye.

"Very funny, very funny," moaned Rodney, "and I wanted a BANG-UP car, too—but I didn't count on that big a bang!"

Rodney appeared about to cry at the loss of his car. At this point Grampa got serious.

"Hey now, youngster, a driver as good as you can't be without a car! Tell you what I'll do—since I've retired anyhow, you can have my car—if you want it!"

And from that year forward, Rodney went forward—right to the finish line in Grampa's car. And on one really knows the secret of his winning to this day, except Grampa—and you!
